

Rights and obligations of a Reviewer

1. A reviewer has a right to refuse from expert evaluation of the scientific article, without explaining the reasons of refusal, except reports about the conflict of interests.

2. Reviewers have an obligation: a) to sign a corresponding form about the conflict of interests; b) to expose to the members of release any conflicts of interests, which can influence on their opinion about the article (publishers must be informed in time about the possible conflicts of interests, in order to regulate operatively the process of criticizing); c) not to use in the own interest knowledge about researches, described in the article before publication.