

PROVISIONS

on a Conflict of Interest

1. General Provisions

The Collection of Proceedings of the International Scientific and Practical Conference «Psycholinguistics in a Modern World» (herein after – the Collection) focuses on taking into account the following principles and rules provided by the provisions on conflicts of interest in the triad “Author – Reviewer – Editor”:

Public confidence in the objectivity of the review process and the quality of published articles largely depends on the extent to which possible conflicts of interest are taken into account when reviewing and making decision on publication.

A conflict of interest may arise if a reviewer, editorial board member, or editorial staff member is related to an employee who may subjectively influence on the decision to publish.

Conflicts of interest can be caused by relationships with the employer, family ties, involvement in financial relations, and so on. Conflicts can also arise as a result of academic competition, personal likes and dislikes, and others.

The edition of the Collection provides for the mandatory receipt from all authors and reviewers of a declaration on the existing conflicts of interest, which may affect the submission and preparation of the manuscript for publication.

2. Rights and Obligations of the Author

Authors of articles have the right to use the materials of the published article:

- in reports at conferences or for educational purposes;
- in the dissertation;
- in fragments of the following articles.

2.1. Authors of scientific articles are required to: (a) sign the appropriate conflict of interest form; (b) provide confirmation that the submitted article has not been previously published in other collections or journals, including in other languages (Collection owns the exclusive right to publish original works that have not been published anywhere before).

3. Rights and Obligations of the Reviewer

3.1. The reviewer has the right to refuse the expert evaluation of the scientific article, without explaining the reasons for the refusal, except for reports of a conflict of interest.

3.2. Reviewers have a commitment to: (a) sign the appropriate form on the conflict of interests; (b) disclose to members of the editorial board any conflicts of interest that may affect their opinion about the article (publishers must be informed in a timely manner about possible conflicts of interest in order to promptly resolve the review process); (c) do not use in their interests the knowledge of the research described in the article until its publication.

4. Rights and Obligations of the Editorial Board

4.1. The editors of the Collection have the right to: (a) select or reject materials of the manuscripts; (b) to bring to public notice, including place the article in whole or in part on the Internet on the website of the Collection and other information resources; (c) use metadata (title, author's name (owner's right), annotations, bibliographic materials, etc.) of the article by disseminating and bringing to public knowledge, processing and systematization, as well as inclusion in international scientific-metric databases and information systems; (d) store and process personal data of the author without limitation of the term in order to include them in the database in accordance with the Law of Ukraine No. 2297-UI “On personal data protection” from 01.06.2010 (surname, name, patronymic; information on scientific qualifications (scientific degree, academic title); information on place of work and position; contact details of authors; information on the availability of printed works in national and international databases of scientific literature for the purpose of further processing to perform search operations in these databases).

4.2. The Editorial Board of the Journal is obliged to: (a) sign the appropriate form on the conflict of interest; (b) take measures to eliminate any conflicts of interest in the event of their occurrence; (c) protect the intellectual property rights of the authors of manuscripts; (c) take all possible measures to prevent copyright infringement by third parties.

5. Responsibility of the Author

5.1. The authors are responsible for: (a) indicating potential conflicts of interest that may affect the decision to publish the article; (b) the objectivity of disclosure of the funding sources for published research; (c) the correctness of writing personal data (name, patronymic; scientific qualification, scientific degree, academic title), information about the place of work and position, contact details of the authors; (d) compliance with the copyright obligations under applicable law.

6. Responsibility of the Reviewer

6.1. Reviewers are responsible for: (a) objectivity and impartiality in assessing the content of the scientific article; (b) competent, comprehensive and thorough analysis of both the positive qualities of the article and specific omissions; (c) timeliness of expert evaluation of the scientific article, preparation of conclusions and writing a review.

7. Responsibility of the Editorial Board

7.1. The Editorial Board is responsible for: (a) timely publication of the Journal; (b) placement of articles in whole or in part on the Internet on the website of the Journal and other information resources; (c) the quality of materials published in the Collection.
